DETAILED ACTION

Upon further consideration, the following non- final action is taken. Any inconvenience is regretted.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 17, 24, 27, 36, 38 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Nishimura et al. The patent to Nishimura teaches structure as claimed including a pallet having a base, first and second support means (26, 28), actuating means (38). It is noted that the structures of Nishimura et al can perform as claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.

3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 27, 33, 34, 35, 37 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nishimura et al. The patent to Nishimura et al teaches structure substantially as claimed including first and second support means capable of moving toward and away from each other, actuating means for causing the first and second support means to move the only difference being that the actuating means is not a pneumatic type. However, the use of pneumatic type assists are known in the art and are matters of desirability and choice and would have been and well within the level of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide such since such would have produced predictable results, thereby providing structure as claimed. It is noted that the elongated portion of the support means is connected to an actuating means with a releasable connection so that it can be replaced by one of a different size. There is no structure to prevent such from occurring. The method of use would have been obvious in view of the structures.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to the claims have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
